Mattern Unreported Since Leaving Coast of Siberia 2 Days Ago

Thinly Settled Northlands Hold Fate of Jimmie Mattern. Round the World Flier—Unreported for Two Days.

Nome, Alaska, June 16 (AP)—A sparsely settled northlands on the Bering Sea today held the fate of Jimmie Mattern, round the world flier, unreported since leaving the Siberian coast two days ago.

On the ninth and most difficult leg of his solo world flight, Mattern's gas supply had been exhausted in the air. He would have been exhausted by 11:30 p. m. (eastern standard time) last night. Along the 2,500-mile hop from Khabarovsk, Siberia, no ship or land settlement had reported sighting him.

While searching plans were held in abeyance today because of the frequency with which "lost planes" have turned up in Alaska, aviation men recalled that he had said before leaving Khabarovsk several days ago on his first attempt to reach Alaska that his plane was in "fine shape."

No severe storms, had faced him on the "Post-Gatty trail," over which the globe girdling record holders—Wiley Post and Harold Gatty—had flown two years ago this month, landing at Solomon Beach, 40 miles east of here. He also had received the advice of Boris Lukhin, experienced Soviet flier, before leaving Khabarovsk, and he gained experience in Alaska flying two years ago.

Fog banks and overcast skies lay over the Bering Sea and the western coast of Alaska in the early hours yesterday, at the completion of the 16 to 17 hours he was given to make the 2,500-mile flight. Had he pushed through to Interior Alaska, however, he should have found safe landing places easily. Aviators said.

ALFONSO MAY APPROVE HIS SON'S MARRIAGE

Paris, June 16 (AP)—The opposition of former King Alfonso of Spain to the marriage of his son, the Prince of Asturias, and a Cuban girl of unequal rank is vanishing, friends said today.

The one-time monarch is almost ready to approve the marriage, and may even attend the wedding, they declared.

The radiant happiness of the young couple, and the charm of the girl, Edelmira Sampedro, daughter of a wealthy Cuban merchant, is said to be melting Alfonso's heart. The former Queen is described as being very happy about it all.

The royal family is expected to acknowledge the bride as a member, assuring acceptance by the monarchists.

June 23 has been tentatively set for the ceremony, to be conducted in Lausanne. This has several sentimental reasons to commend it.—The couple met on the 23rd of one month, and were engaged on the same date of another.

Why Messinger Is Wearing a Smile

Broadway Merchant on Thursday Observed His 35th Anniversary in Business Here—Today He and His Wife are Celebrating Their 30th Wedding Anniversary.

Thursday and today were big events in the life of Samuel Messinger, the popular Broadway merchant, for on Thursday he observed his 35th anniversary in business on central Broadway, and today he and his wife are celebrating their 30th wedding anniversary. In addition to those two events his daughter, Roland Scott Messinger, and the Rev. Roland Scott Irons were united in marriage at the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer. Those are the reasons why Mr. Messinger is wearing a smile.

Mr. Messinger opened a general meat market at 458 Broadway on June 15, 1908, which venture proved a success from the start. He remained at that location for six years and then purchased the building, next door at 458 Broadway, which he occupied ever since.

Two years ago he decided to add a grocery department to his fast growing meat business and became a member of the Independent Grocers' Association. He had a large addition built in the rear of his store which was remodelled throughout making it one of the most attractive business places in that section of the city.

President Signs Important Measures

Washington, June 16 (AP)—President Roosevelt took command over the nation's industry today as he signed the powerful Industrial Supervision bill.

He also made law the Glass-Steagall Bank Reform-Deposit Insurance measure, devoting the main part of his time through the day to the formal approval of several vast measures enacted in the closing days of the extra session.

As keynote of the Roosevelt recovery program, the Industrial bill, which also provides for a $3,300,000,000 public works plan, was signed just before noon at a brief ceremony attended by the leaders of Congress who guided the measure to enactment.

Soon afterward he signed the Railroad Reorganization measure designed to place the nation's rail lines in better order.

Determined to put the Industrial Act into quick operation in order to put thousands to work and to reorganize working conditions in the interests of shorter hours and higher wages, the President summoned administrators to his side.

Hugh S. Johnson, who has taken care of the preliminary arrangements for the broad Federal machinery to put it into effect, was on hand with the President.

Police Not Given Beer Sellers' List

Inquiry at police headquarters today brought out the fact that the Kingston police department has received no list of those who hold licenses to sell beer in the city either from the state board at Albany or the Ulster county beer board. In fact the Ulster county beer board has no record either as to who can sell and who cannot, as all that it does is to approve or disapprove applications and send them to the state board. The state board mails out the license it granted direct to the one who applied for it.

Although Chairman Mulrooney of the state beer board has asked all police departments to cooperate with the state board in enforcing the beer law the Kingston police department with a list of those who have been granted licenses to sell beer and also with a list of those whose applications have been denied.

Why this has not been done is not known.

The houses on either side, all frame structures, were badly damaged.

The trooper accuses Katz of purchasing 2,250 feet of copper wire that had been stolen from the Brigham brickyard. The hearing was adjourned until later.

Kiwanians Watched Little Dancers Then Danced Themselves

Pupils of Helen Cashin School of Dancing Entertained Kiwanian Club—Members Marked to Lure of the Stage at Meeting Thursday.

Delightfully entertained by members of the "Rita and Misses" cast of the Helen Cashin School of Dancing, members of the Kiwanian Club at the Governor Clinton Hotel on Thursday noon, were so enraptured by the musical setting and the many dancing feet that they decided to put on their own show after the visiting dancers had departed, and with great success.

Following the luncheon, President Howard St. John introduced two new members, Harry LeMoine and Addison Jones. The following guests were also introduced: Mrs. Margaret Schilling, who accompanied Miss Cashin's troupe, P. J. Fox of Watervliet and John Ball of Burlington, Vt.

A surprise feature of the program was the passing of cigars by Sam Messinger, who is celebrating 25 years in business.

The first performer of the Cashin School was little Miss Jane Ball in a toe dance, enacted with a great deal of charm and grace, which brought her marked applause. Peggy Schilling, Joan Weber, Peggy Feeney, Patricia Miller and Mary Phelan then danced a waltz clog number as a chorus, which was also given a big hand, the small "chorines" performing with precision and spirit.

A "Five Step" chorus number followed, the dancers being Charlotte Vorton, Lorraine Finn, Mildred Perry, Leola Saddlemyre and Cornelia Rose, and here again careful training was evident in the group dancing, which merited and received generous clapping from the Kiwanians.

A soft shoe number and novelty "sitting clog dance" were next presented by Miriam Tammany, Mildred Blyou and Miss Ball. All performed like veterans and received big hands for their numbers.

The closing number was a specialty tap dance by Miss Ball, which brought the entertaining program of the young dancers to a close.

At this point Paul Zucca, "Joe Humphries" of local Kiwanians, began casting his eye around for club talent to round out the program, remarking that these men who had "unseized" many a "Kapers" would not doubt be happy to display their wares.

No sooner said than done, and Ira V. D. Warren and Sam Messinger were treading an old "Hoe Down" which if it lacked in grace of the Cashin pupils, made up for it in enthusiasm.

The seductive "Merry Widow" waltz followed with Walter Ostrander as the "widow" and Dr. Raymond S. Crispell acting the dashing prince; and so smoothly did this impromptu number go that material was found for a future "Kapers".

Lucius Doty as the Russian princess and Robert Herzog as the Volga Boatman presented the next number, and here again material was uncovered for future public appearances.

Bringing the atmosphere nearer home Bernard Joy, Robert Service, R. Frederick Chidsey, Dr. Hampson Jones, Roger Loughran and Charles Snyder, took roles as the famous "Floradora Girls" of a few years past, and presented dancing such as was never before seen at a Kiwanian meeting. The more remarkable was their performance in that they danced to "Home on the Range" singing as they trod the light fantastic.

The closing number was a boxing bout between Morris Samter as "Max Schmeling" and Dr. Gifford as "Max Baer" with Mr. Zucca leaving his role as "Humphries" to don the character of the famous referee, "Gunboat Smith".

In this bout the "Maxes" were the winners, much to the chagrin of "Smith" who received the blows of both fighters.

Music for the entire program was furnished by Danny Bittner.

SUFFERING AND DEATH FROM FAMINE IN SHENSI

Shanghai, China, June 16 (AP)—Terrible suffering and widespread death throughout Shensi province from famine were reported in Chinese press dispatches today.

Once this area in central China was a remarkable fertile wheat growing section, but no rain has fallen in Shensi since 1928, the advisers said, and the country has been denuded of "any living vegetation."

Thousands of helpless have died. Others have turned bandit, preying on countrymen not quite so bad off as they. Few farm animals remain. Cannibalism is widespread, the reports continue.

"Wolves are abundant in the famine areas," said the dispatches. "They come every night and obtain victims from among the half-starved people."

Selecting Jury in 2 Negligence Actions

Brought By Mrs. Sarah C. McCommons For Death of Husband and By Miss McCommons For Her Injuries.

The selection of a jury was commenced this morning in supreme court before Judge Staley in two negligence actions growing out of a collision on January 17 last on the Dunderberg mountain road near Iona Island in which James Albert McCommons of Fair street, this city, was fatally injured and his daughter, Catherine McCommons, was seriously injured. Mrs. Sarah C. McCommons, as administratrix of the estate of Mr. McCommons brings an action in negligence to recover $102,000 and Miss McCommons seeks $50,000 for her injuries. That day Mr. McCommons and his wife and daughter were enroute to New York city in their Cadillac car when the truck bound for Highland with merchandise and the sedan were in collision. Plaintiffs allege that the accident was caused by the negligence of the defendants and the defendants allege that the road was icy and the accident was unavoidable.

Mr. McCommons received fatal injuries and Miss McCommons was injured and lost the sight of one eye.

Frank W. Brooks and Lloyd R. LeFever appear for plaintiffs and William A. Mulvey of Poughkeepsie appear for the defendants.

TO PROTEST AGAINST VETERANS' REDUCTIONS.

Richfield Springs, N. Y., June 16 (AP)—Public officers of New York state, it became known today, are planning to protest against federal reductions in disability allowances for World War veterans when they gather here for their annual meeting June 27-30. The protest will be on the ground that the federal cuts promise to increase the unemployment relief burden which the municipalities and the state are now carrying.

Harry J. Schell of Albany, secretary of the state association of public welfare officials, who is handling the convention arrangements, expressed the belief today that the federal reductions will throw thousands of needy veterans' cases into the laps of local welfare boards in cities, towns and villages.

"The protest against the federal reductions in veterans' aid undoubtedly will be the keynote of our annual meeting," Schell said.

NEWBURN POSTAL CLERK HELD IN $9,600 THEFT

Edward S. Graham, for 25 years employed in the Newburgh postoffice, was arrested Wednesday when alleged defalcations totaling $9,600 were discovered in the books he kept. Postoffice Inspector George W. Goddard caused the arrest. Arraigned before U. S. Commissioner George M. Northrop on a charge of embezzlement, Graham waived examination and was held under $10,000 bail to await the action of a federal grand jury. It is claimed that Graham falsified his accounts in the money order department of the post office.

Singer's Sale A Success

That the public appreciates bargains was again proved by the "Opportunity Days Sale" now being held at Singer's, 40 Broadway. The Freeman was the only means of advertising used for this sale and it proved very satisfactory. Singer's carry a complete line of furnishings for men, women and children.

Congress Adjourns; Program of President Roosevelt Wins

Acceptance of President's Terms On Expenditures For Veterans, Its Last Act—Record Has No Parallel In American History—Harsh Words In Senate In The Closing Hour.

Washington, June 16—The Roosevelt Congress, master of a mighty legislative program for national recovery, adjourned at 12:21 o'clock this morning, after chalking up a final notable victory for the President.

Its last act was accepting of his terms on expenditures for veterans, thus safeguarding the President's economy program which tops off hundreds of millions to achieve balance of the ordinary budget.

The Senate fought to the last the same fight that had held up adjournment since last Saturday but, blocked by the utter refusal of the House to accept an enlargement of spending for ex-soldiers, it gave in, voted 45 to 36 to take the compromise offered by the administration, passed the $650,000,000 independent offices appropriation bill and adjourned.

The House, that had lingered idly through the night quit too, after cheering and yelling applause at a last minute letter from the President.

In it he thanked Senators and representatives "for making possible, on the broad average, a more sincere and whole-hearted cooperation between the legislative and executive branches of the United States government than has been witnessed since graduation from Cornell in many a long year."

That modest sentence covered a record which has no parallel in American history. Every major request by the President, some for power greater than ever given an executive in peace time and perhaps in war, had been granted. The Congress had stuck almost exclusively to the President's own program. It had done its work with unexampled speed, adjourning within a week of the date on which he proposed that it go home, and that despite a grueling fight on the issue that has smashed all economy programs in the past—funds for veterans.

Harsh Words In Closing Hour.

This last fight brought harsh words to the Senate even in the closing hour. The debate had been concluded, but compromise accepted and the last bill passed when Senator Glass (D-Va.) took the floor to denounce what he called "a wanton and unprovoked attack" on himself by Bronson Cutting, Independent Republican of New Mexico, who earlier in the night had given Glass a tongue-lashing for his part in the final conference agreement on the veterans' issue.

When Glass was done, adjournment was voted and the echoing capitol chambers of debate were closed until next January.

Adjournment found undone only a few tasks. The administration bill to make possible naming of a mainland governor for Hawaii died under the threat of a filibuster by Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.). Senate resolutions to block the president's $25,000,000 saving program for bureau reorganization were left to be reconsidered by the House.

Relief for municipalities in default on their securities was also lost through failure of the Senate to pass on the bill. Sidetracked earlier had been the president's request for power to impose embargoes on arms and munition shipments to warring countries.

Worst Spring on Record In Albuquerque, N. Mexico

West Shokan, June 16.—Mr. and Mrs. E. Cornwell Longyear, former residents of this section who now reside in Albuquerque, N. Mexico, in a letter to Shokan friends report having experienced the worst spring on record as regards the weather in the southwest. Wind and sand storms, accepted as a matter of course in March, haven't stopped yet; according to the Longyears, while a severe frost on May 14 killed all fruit in the valley as far down as Los Alamos. On Monday, June 5, during a hot spell, a sand and wind storm kept up for four hours, during which time it became necessary to keep the Longyear house tightly closed.

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON—There seems to be no way of figuring out Huey Long's Louisiana—what he will do or say.

For several months, almost since the start of the special session, there has been comment on how Huey Long has changed. He has shown that he is a different man from the one who had been the "bad boy" of the senate.

Why, you're safe to stroll out of the press gallery for a smoke when Huey's talking now," remarked one of the members of the press gallery recently.

And you were. Huey even permitted the Glass backing bill, his pet target, to go through the senate without much protest. There was talk that he had agreed not to oppose it after an amendment providing for insurance of bank deposits had been included in the bill.

Whether this is true or not, he did keep comparatively quiet and the measure went through the senate quickly.

A Changed Huey?

There were all sorts of explanations offered for the change in Huey. Some suggested that he had found he could be more effective in his new role.

But everybody apparently was wrong. For just when they thought a new Huey had come into being, he sprang the old Huey with as much force and thunder as he had shown before.

The administration's industrial recovery bill set him off, but before he had wound up he had given many of his cards on the table. The woman who made hard at her killing time in her back yard, the man in the rural sections who abandoned his car and went into the woods to buy crosses for railroads would be put out of business under the terms of the bill, he shouted. He didn't care what others might do, but as for himself he intended to take care of the women at the wash pots who he said had given him whatever political standing he had.

He went after Joe Robinson, the democratic leader, again and renewed that old feud. He threatened to go into Arkansas at "next election time" (when Robinson comes up for reelection) apparently in an effort to get Robinson's political scalp.

Then The Kickback

The whole thing was typical of Huey—the "kickback" going strong.

When he had finished, Robinson waded into him. Not since the time the democratic leader took Tom Heflin of Alabama over the burdies for his attacks on the Catholic church in the senate has Robinson dealt so severely with one of his democratic brethren.

But the "kingfish" came up from the word "kickback" he received from Robinson with the resiliency of a rubber ball.

OLD CZAR'S ARCTIC HOME BECOMES MOSCOW MUSEUM.

Archangel, U. S. S. R. (AP)—The old house built for Peter the Great when he came here late in the 17th century, is to be moved to Moscow. Decision to transport the structure to the soviet capital was made because it and the exhibit therein of old ikons attracted too many sightseers here and there was no money with which to pay for the necessary guards.

In Moscow the house will be preserved as a historical monument. It first was erected near an old fortress guarding the north Dvina river but when Peter abandoned it to return to St. Petersburg the house was moved to its present site near one of the quays on the gulf of Archangel.

ANCIENT SWEDISH LUGGER SHOWS BIG CARGO SPACE.

Stockholm (AP)—The oldest sailing ship ever found in Scandinavia, a square-rigged, blunt-proved vessel believed to have breathed the waves as far back as 400 A. D., has been fully restored and put in a museum at Gothenburg.

The "Galtaback ship" was found five years ago by a farmer near Varberg on the west coast of Sweden. The craft has a length of 45 feet and is clinker-built of oak boards, joined with oak pegs.

Experts have declared the craft unusually sea-worthy, with exceptional loading capacity. Though it was designed chiefly on its square sail, oars also could be used.

Soviet Builds Super-Highway.

Moscow (AP)—The Automobile and Road Institute has finished a 250-mile highway between this city and Gorky, divided into three sections, each 38 feet wide, for teams, trucks and passenger cars. The passenger section is asphalted, carried over intersections on viaducts and cars average 72 miles an hour on it.

WEIGHT IN GOLD AS ALMS GIFT OF BORN MINDS BANKER

Bombay (AP)—Rao Bahadur Ganga Raja, one of the richest bankers in the province of Andhra, celebrated his 66th birthday by giving to the poor his own weight in gold, silver and jewels.

It is a proverb in India that more than 60 years of life can be insured by such a gift.

Thousands of villagers flocked to Ellora town where the banker seated himself on one side of a huge scale. Gems and coins were poured into the other receptacle until the balance swung evenly. Then the treasure was distributed to the throng.

ROMAN THEATRE REVEALED IN OLD ISRAELITE CAPITAL

Jerusalem (AP)—Foundations and many rows of seats of a Roman outdoor theatre, as well as the pavement of the pit, have been uncovered at Sebastia, ancient capital of Israel.

The theatre is a bit east of the Augustan temple, built by King Herod to appease Rome.

Excavations also show the limits of the Israelite city as well as the Roman city walls on the east side. Foundations for three towers of the Herodian period also have been found.

MEXICAN BEAN BEETLES YIELD TO RIGHT POISON

Mexican bean beetles have now entered all states east of the Mississippi. The seriousness of these pests becomes more pronounced each year as they spread over an ever enlarging territory. They are one of the most difficult of all insect enemies to control but this can be done by spraying or dusting with the proper materials which can be obtained at the stores. You can also kill Mexican bean beetles with a non-poisonous spray of pyrethrum and rotenone.

New Palts Man Fined

New York, June 15 (Special)—Charges of liquor violations against two New Palts men, arrested at the Palmer House there on January 4, 1932, were disposed of by Judge William Bondy in Federal court here yesterday. He dismissed F. L. Shappee and fined Arthur Bartlett, who had pleaded guilty, $10. Agents charged the men with selling a glass of apple whiskey and possessing 288 pints of beer and a small quantity of whiskey and wine. Padlock proceedings have been instituted against the premises.

Prince Of Wales Nears 39, Still The Talk Of The Debs And Still A Jaunty Bachelor

London (AP)—The world's most famous bachelor, Edward Albert Christian George Andrew Patrick David, otherwise the Prince of Wales, and more commonly just Wales, will be just one year from the 40-mark on June 23.

Slim, well-groomed, and nattily dressed, he continues to wear his years with the air of a jaunty youth and one birthday finds him much as another—highly popular and obviously satisfied with bachelorhood.

This anniversary will dawn on a match-making market in a state of almost complete depression. The public in general appears to have become reconciled to his unwed state and, for the moment, has ceased linking the prince's name on an instant's notice with princeps or deb.

It's A Game.

The one brisk revival in the game of marrying off the prince came last October when he went to Sweden and an "engagement" between Princess Ingrid and the Prince of Wales was boomed anew.

Though his disinterest in matrimony has become traditional, the prince still rates high in the eyes of the girls, and one of the main parlor pastimes of his debauches making their bows in Buckingham Palace this season has been speculation as to which of the five royal courts Wales would attend.

Part of the speculation is as yet unanswered—for one court remains to be held and that on the night of Wales' birthday.

Because of King George's rheumatism, the prince had already attended two courts, and whether he will round out his birthday by attending another is not known. Ordinarily, he attends only one court.

His Life in a Film.

This year's anniversary will be marked, on its eve, by the first public screening of "The Prince of Wales," a film biography of his life. The prince is expected to attend the premiere.

The film, for which the prologue and epilogue are spoken by Wales himself, traces in pictures his entire career, starting with the still photographs taken during his babyhood and childhood.

Instead of being a chronological record of his life, the film takes up in turn his youth, his part in the war, the prince as a sportsman, his public life and his travels.

He's Having A Birthday

Here's Edward Albert, Prince of Wales, dressed in his natty best. He'll be 39 on June 23.

Characteristically for one who, in the past year, has devoted an enormous amount of time to stress the cause of the unemployed, the prince has signified that the profits from the film biography shall be handed over to the National Council of Social Service for its work among the jobless.

GIRLS' FRIENDLY SOCIETY HELD CLOSING MEETING

The closing meeting of the Girls' Friendly Society of Holy Cross Church was held Tuesday evening, June 12. After a service in the church a business meeting was held. The following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Miss Angela DeBols; vice president, Mrs. James Ryan; secretary, Miss Alice K. Harman; treasurer, Miss Miriam R. Ryan; recording secretary, Miss Helen L. Jones.

A social hour followed the business meeting and refreshments were served. Activities of the society will be resumed in September.

A Fair Question and a Fair Answer

For a Cigarette to Satisfy—

It must have the right kind of tobacco.

We honestly believe that the tobacco used in CHESTERFIELD cigarettes are of better quality (and hence of better taste) than in any other cigarette at the price.

It must be made right; uniform, well-filled—no particles of tobacco getting into your mouth; no hard and soft places.

It must have the right flavor and aroma—the right amount of aromatic Turkish.

It must reach you just as fresh as if you passed by the factory door.

CHESTERFIELD has what it takes to satisfy. Just try them.

They have what it Takes to Satisfy—Just Try them!

Easy-to-Make Smart Accessories

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IN MATTER of adorning, flattering accessories the present fashion program is nothing less than exciting. Did one ever see a more fascinating array of knick-knacks and furbelows made of organdie, pique, linen and other like washable weaves as add the "touch that tells" to our costumes these days!

The best part of the story is that these intriguing trifles, which carry such an unmistakable air of feminine charm, are so inexpensive they are within the reach of all, and if one can sew even a little, or crochet, one can dress with the aid of these embellishing little fantasies, which are so easily made, to look like "a million" at a cost next to nothing.

The new organdie blouses are adorable. The model at the top in the picture is especially attractive, being styled after a unique pattern which stresses a novel high girle effect done in tucks, together with the fact that if it is handmade, gives it an exclusiveness all its own. Why not copy this dainty blouse? In running the tucks be sure to use the best of thread. Take infinitely fine stitches for best results. By the way, it's fashion-wise to wear with your light gray or string-colored suit either a navy or brown organdie blouse. In handmaking these you can get thread an exact match which does not fade with laundering.

The capelet centered to the right in the group is a "darling." It also is made of organdie, white of course, for white organdie fixings are so crisp and immaculate they freshen up even the most faded gown. One of these dainty little skull-like organdie capes ought to be included in every up-to-date wardrobe. They are positively fetching worn with flowery chiffons or over pastel crepe frocks. The cunningest sort of patterns are easily available. If you are clever at making rolled hems (it's no trick at all after you know how) finish the edges in that way, for it adds greatly to the appearance of the cape to be so daintily hemmed.

About the most thrilling item brought out this season is the little jacket made either of pique or linen. All the young girls, the debutantes, their sisters, will be wearing some type or other of these linen or pique jackets before long. The model in the picture, to the left, intrigues because of its young looking lines and its smart detail. It has the fashionable round, collarless neck. The fastening is made decorative by nine buttons and "eye" buttonholes down the front. This is the simplest type of button-hole to make. Crochet the little hat of mercerized cotton.

Speaking of crochet note the gloves the figure to the left below in the group is wearing. This resourceful young woman converts a pair of ordinary white fabric gloves into a high-style item by working an insert of hand crochet over the back of the hand and adding deep flaring crocheted cuffs (using mercerized cotton). One could secure directions for crocheting at any fancywork department. The rippling collar which she wears is made of pique, the points so dovetailed as to achieve a sprightly flare. The other collar and cuff set is easily made of pique which is quilted with six-cord, number sixty thread, thus giving it a honeycomb effect. Its little bowties are especially attractive.

PLENTY OF VARIETY FOUND IN NECKLINE

How much attention are you paying to your neckline? It's all very well to concentrate on the hemline and the waistline provided you do not neglect the neck's best line. And if you like variety you'll have plenty of it this year. We'll start with the country neckline and work toward town.

The musician and artist bow tie combined with a Buster Brown collar is A-1 for the wide-open spaces. Also the silk scarf of bandanna wrapped around the throat and tied in a careless sort of fashion with the ends kicking around like a tomboy. The stock collar and riding suit when you're feeling horsey, and the knitted straight scarf looped over in front and fastened with a novelty pin are both happy ways of drawing the country neckline.

These Mesh Pocketbooks

Can Be Dug Out of Trunks Speaking of mesh—you might as well begin looking for that gold and silver mesh pocketbook you picked away several years ago, because they are going to see fashionable daylight again in the summer. With them will come another cluster of "do-lads" on a ring—compact, lipstick, perfume and rouge—things that are too heavy to carry inside on account of breaking the delicate and precious metal links. They can be carried separately, or attached to the side of the purse.

Hats for Spring

Straw hats are marching out of Paris military salons, an army of them, and designed to war from the crack of dawn until the hour of noon in the early morning. They are extremely varied in shape and in style.

Tobogganing Fad

Tobogganing is said to have originated with the Canadian Indians. They used the "obabagan" for transporting their kills of deer and bear or their household goods over the snow crust. But tobogganing was first made a sport by British army officers stationed at Montreal.

BOWS AND PLEATS

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Watch pleats! Already in Paris they are enjoying a big vogue. Many of the most successful evening gowns, especially those of monotone pastel chiffon, have skirts which are fine accordion or knife-pleated the whole way round. In the Lanvin gown to the left in this sketch pleats are discreetly and effectively treated. The idea of using wide pleats for the capelet in contrast to the finely pleated flounce on the skirt is very original and daring. And bows! It is impossible to overdo the bow fad. Fashion is "saying it" with bows every hour in the day and the night for evening frocks fairly revel in bow trimmings. The big bow which fastens the little capelet on the Lanvin gown is one way of interpreting the bow movement, while the conspicuous green velvet bows which distinguish the Paton evening gown of pink satin sketched to the right gives an entirely different impression of how bows and bows are being employed in the most "fashioning" of the season's modes.

came out that distribution of securities by that method had made it possible to raise cash promptly without creating large amounts of securities on the market suddenly and perhaps disastrously. Apparently, to the framers of the new securities law, as to many other persons, it was really a polite and dangerous form of personage. The publicity attendant upon the Morgan hearing served to illuminate this particular feature for the general public.

GRASPED OPPORTUNITY

Among the thousands of this year's crop of college graduates is Wilbur B. Huston. Four years ago any newspaper reader could have told who he was. To do so today takes an awfully good memory. Huston was the Seattle boy who won the first Edison scholarship and was acclaimed throughout the nation at that time as "America's brightest boy." The publicity and the title might have proved disastrous for the lad. Apparently they did not. The young man has just graduated from Massachusetts Institute of Technology with high scholastic standing. There isn't any moral to the tale, except that a boy had a fine opportunity and made the most of it. Scholarships must be rather satisfactory things to endow, since they mean opportunity for ambitious and talented youth. Most of the young men and women winning them make good.

CURING PAINFUL FEET

One of the things hard to understand is that when there is pain of any kind, anywhere in the feet, a great many people think that the use of foot arches, arch supports, is the best method of relieving the condition.

Now there is a real need for foot supports in some cases of flat feet and where needed they make life much more bearable, but the use of these supports where they are not needed not only does positive harm to the feet, but prevents the proper treatment for the real ailment that is causing the trouble.

What about painful feet? It is not agreed that most cases of painful feet are due to arthritis—rheumatism—which in turn is due to some infection from teeth, tonsils, gall bladder or intestine. The treatment here is the removal of the infection.

Another cause is a strain of the muscles and ligaments due to overuse of the feet in dancing, walking, running, golfing or other exercise and the treatment here is simply rest.

However there are a great many cases due to flat feet, and the correction of flat feet will bring about relief.

How can you know that your feet are really flat? In examining a recruit for overseas service we simply had him walk about the armory floor a few steps. In his bare feet, and he then knelt down and the dirt on the soles of his feet gave a perfect outline of the arch. The arch would be quite clean as it hadn't touched the floor. Ordinarily the arch part or clean portion should be from one-half to two-thirds the width of the foot.

If the whole sole of the foot was black from the dirt on the floor, or if the arch or clean portion was very narrow, then the recruit was rejected for first class service, on account of "flat feet."

What can be done to correct flat feet that are not so flat that they need arch supports?

Dr. J. C. Elsom, Madison, Wis., suggests the following exercises:

(1) Walk correctly: toes pointing forward, not outward.

(2) As home exercises, walk a few steps whenever and wherever possible on the outer sides of the feet. When sitting down, cross the feet.

(3) Walk along an imaginary line, the right foot stepping over on the left side of the line, and the left foot over the right side.

All these exercises strengthen the "grip" muscles of the foot and hence raise the arch upward.

CHAPTER 17
 LOVELOCK AGAIN

WHEN George got home she went straight to the kitchen to tell Mrs. Lovelock the result of her trip to London. But the kitchen was deserted, and dark save for the red glow of a well-banked-up fire.

"I wonder if any house in the world is as lonely as ours? George sighed as she turned away and went up to her room.

She felt depressed; it seemed so useless having adventures if there was nobody to whom one could relate them; she threw her hat down on the bed, and at the same moment she heard her name called by Mrs. Lovelock from across the landing.

Something was the matter! The girl's heart missed a beat as she ran to obey that call which had sounded somehow weak and pathetic.

"I thought you must be out," George said breathlessly, and then, "Oh, are you ill?"

Mrs. Lovelock lay flat on her back, still wearing the faded cotton frock of the early morning, and her face was drawn and pinched with pain.

"It's here," she gasped, her hand on her side.

"I'll get some brandy," George said. She flew down the stairs and brought a tumbler from the kitchen.

She raced up the stairs again, spilling the brandy as she went. Then she slipped at arm beneath Mrs. Lovelock's head and made her swallow a few drops.

"How long have you had the pain?" she asked.

A wry smile crossed the white face.

"How long? Before you went away."

"Have you been alone all afternoon?" George asked.

"Yes. Who'd you think would be here?"

She moved restlessly as if in acute pain.

"I'll get the doctor," George said. Mrs. Lovelock's thin lips moved in protest.

"What's the good of a doctor?" she asked.

"What's the good of having a pain when it might be cured," George answered practically.

She went out into the road hatless and ran the short distance to the house of the village doctor. But the doctor was out and George's heart fell.

"But I want him," she said, as if that remark helped matters. "Mrs. Lovelock is ill, and I want him at once."

"The doctor is not at home," was all the satisfaction she received, and then seeing the distress in the girl's eyes, "Maybe you'd catch him at the Boar's Head."

"Oh, thank you," George fled on again, and gave a little sigh of thankfulness when she saw that his car was still drawn up at the inn door.

The doctor was in Mrs. Spear's sitting-room; George could hear his voice mingled with the landlady's loud, cheery laugh.

She burst in upon them unceremoniously.

"MRS. LOVELOCK'S ILL," she announced.

The doctor, who possessed the somewhat unfortunate name of Dudd, turned round quickly.

He knew George well, and was one of the very few people in the neighborhood who understood the dreariness of her life and pitied her.

"I'll come at once," he said.

As she went out she cast a quick look towards the staircase that twisted away in spiral fashion to the room above where she knew Nicholas must be. Two people ill in one day! Mrs. Lovelock always said that things happened in threes. She wondered who the next victim would be.

"She seems very ill," she said. "She's got a bad pain."

"Indigestion I expect," Dr. Dudd said absently; he seldom had anything more serious to diagnose for people like Mrs. Lovelock.

Doctors were not very sympathetic she thought, or perhaps they were so fed up with other people's pains that they no longer cared. She rather liked Dr. Dudd; he had a streak of white hair over his forehead.

And when she found romantic; he had been very kind to her too on several occasions when her uncle had been more obnoxious than usual; she gave a quick sigh of relief when she reached the Hotties.

"I'll go straight up," Dr. Dudd said, and George led the way.

Dr. Dudd bent over the bed, and for a moment there was silence, then he turned to George.

"Run away for a moment," "I'd like to stay," the girl insisted, but he shook his head.

"Run away, I'll come down and tell you all about it," he promised.

THE SOUND OF A PIN DROPPING TRAVELS JUST AS FAST AS THE ROAR OF A CANNON...

The speed of sound is not dependent upon its source or volume, but rather upon the medium through which it travels. Through a given medium, such as air, water or a solid, the sound of a dropping pin travels just as fast as that from a heavy explosion.

Sound travels much faster through most solids than it does through liquids, and generally speaking, it travels faster through liquids than through gases. In air at ordinary temperatures the speed of sound is a little more than 1100 feet per second. Under heavy pressure the speed is greater, and at high temperatures the speed more than doubles.

In solids sound travels an average of about 10 times as fast as in air. In glass the speed reaches nearly 20,000 feet, or more than three miles per second. Among metals lead offers the greatest resistance to speed, with just over 4000 feet per second. One exception to the rule that sound generally travels faster in solids than in air is found in vulcanized rubber. In that medium sound travels but 177 feet per second. In iron and steel the speed of sound is about 16,000 feet per second.

A person listening for an approaching train which is, say, three miles away, would hear the click of the wheels in one second by holding an ear to the rail. Sound of the whistle sounded at the same point, if it could be heard, would not reach the listener until 12 or 13 seconds later.

POLITICS at Random

ONE thing the all-embracing administration emergency program has not done is to end the dispute whether Mr. Roosevelt, as President, is destined to be influenced more greatly by the conservative or by the radical element among his following.

It will be recalled that this was a subject of prime discussion a year ago, when the democratic nomination was made.

Some of the most extreme of the left-wingers from the west were extending assurances that the candidate was one hundred per cent radical; that he ardently wanted a redistribution of wealth, and hated "Wall street and the interests" with unexampled venom.

At the same time a group of eastern millionaires and railroad Presidents were saying that the nominee was as "safe" as Calvin Coolidge himself; that he could be trusted never to go off on a dangerous tangent or countenance any measure not thoroughly sound and orthodox.

This all was so confusing that many American citizens just gave it up, and decided to wait and see how Mr. Roosevelt himself would settle the dispute if and when he entered the White House.

Since March 4 he has expressed himself to congress on virtually every important issue. Yet the dispute goes on, with only minor modifications.

From Both Sides
 The farm bill was passed amid cries of pain from old-line easterners, who said the inspiration for such a policy could have come only from red Russia.

The inflation project and the gold clause repeal shocked some of the conservatives even more.

But the industry control bill, drafted largely by big industrialists, stirred up just as great a tempest among the radicals, who prophesied an industrial order completely dominated by trusts.

And the keystone policy of them all—absolute administration insistence on a balanced budget—was as much applauded by the financial giants as it was berated by those who wanted to go on spending in response to what they felt was to voice of "the common people."

Extremes
 It may not clarify the situation a great deal, but it is interesting to recall that when the new administration came in, the extremes of democratic opinion were popularly believed to be personified by Senator Carter Glass on the one hand, and Senator Huey Long on the other.

Day after day, these two glared at one another across a great gulf, and each was insisting that Mr. Roosevelt was on his side.

Toward the end of the special session both Glass and Long openly broke with the White House on specific measures. Some of the President's ideas, it appeared, were too radical for Glass, some too conservative for Long.

But these same ideas, of both sorts, went right on commanding overwhelming majorities in congress; which provides food for thought, since it raises a very interesting question:

Is it, perhaps, the Roosevelt purpose to disprove the old supposition that the parties must be realigned so that all the liberals are on one side and all the conservatives on the other; and to base the new democratic party on principles which will run squarely between these two extremes, attracting only the middle-ground, middle class elements of American politics?

SINGER'S ENCORE SHOCKS TRADITION-BOUND MILAN
 Milan, Italy (AP).—The first encore to be sung at the famous Scala opera house in more than 20 years has created a back-stage uproar with threats of changes in the theater's staff for next season.

Feodor Chaliapin sang the encore, Franco Ghione, orchestra director, bore the brunt of the blame by Manager Mattaloni.

Since before the Toscanini days audiences at the Scala have applauded without hope of a repetition. Chaliapin knew this and says the theater management had no right to break the tradition despite the thunderous ovation that greeted his singing in "The Barber of Seville."

Ghione certainly knew it and should not have obeyed the star's signal to start over again. Mattaloni maintains. The manager is said to have been so worked up over the incident that he told the maestro he need not expect to be re-engaged next year.

The maestro's defense is that when Chaliapin called to him to start again "da capo" or "from the beginning" he had either to do so or create a scene.

Synopsis of Home Owners Loan Act

Washington, June 12.—Below is given a synopsis of the text of the Home Owners Loan Act, as it will be signed by the president today. In explanation of how applications under the Act can be made, the chairman of the Home Loan Bank Board has made the following statement: There will be a general manager for the Home Owners Loan Corporation established in each state, with sufficient employees to handle the business, whose location will be well known, and applications to such manager should be made by mail or personal call for blanks to fill out, making applications for loans to take up mortgages in existence. If, from the application, it appears that the loan is one that the Corporation can make under the law, it will be referred to an appraiser or agent in the county where the applicant lives, who will immediately appraise the property and have the local attorney there determine as to the soundness of the title, and on their report, if favorable, the loan will be closed, papers executed, and the bonds or cash, as the case may be, paid to take over the mortgage which is in existence.

Synopsis.

(1) It creates a Home Owner's Loan Corporation, with a capitalization not exceeding $200,000,000 and authorized to issue bonds not exceeding $2,000,000,000, the latter to be used for mortgage exchanges or to be sold for cash to provide funds to take up the mortgages.

(2) The Corporation's bonds will carry 4 per cent interest, and are to be guaranteed by the government as to interest only and are to mature within a period of not more than 18 years. They are to be exempt, both as to principal and interest, from all taxation (except surtaxes, estate, inheritance and gift taxes), and shall be accepted by the Corporation at face value in payment of debts owing it.

(3) For direct relief to home owners, the act provides that for a period of three years following the enactment of the act the corporation may deal directly with owners occupying their homes or holding same as their homestead although temporarily residing elsewhere, provided the home is built for not more than four families and has a value of not more than $20,000.

(4) The corporation is authorized to exchange its bonds for first mortgages on homes and to pay any accrued taxes, assessments, necessary maintenance and repairs, and incidental costs in cash, provided the mortgagees will consent to take the corporation's bonds for the mortgage.

(5) The exchange of bonds for mortgages may not be made in an amount higher than 80 per cent of the value of the property, or in a total amount not to exceed $14,000, whichever is the smaller.

(6) On the exchange of bonds for mortgages, the corporation is authorized to take from the home owner a new lien for a period not exceeding 15 years, carrying 5 per cent interest, amortized quarterly, semi-annually, or annually, depending on circumstances and the home owner's situation.

(7) If the bonds accepted by the mortgagee are less in value than the face value of the mortgage, the difference will be credited to the home owner.

(8) Provides moratorium for three years, from passage of Act, on installments of principal of mortgage made to Home Owners Loan Corporation if interest, taxes and other conditions of mortgage are met.

(9) Extensions of time to home owners for the payment of any installment or principal or interest owed by him to the Corporation are provided if the circumstances justify.

(10) The Corporation is authorized to make loans in cash on property not otherwise encumbered up to 80 per cent of its value for the payment of taxes and assessments on the real estate, and necessary maintenance and repairs.

(11) Where the mortgagee is unwilling to exchange his mortgage for a bond, the Corporation is authorized to loan the home owner direct 40 per cent of the value of his property to take up his mortgage in cash at an interest rate not exceeding 6 per cent, provided he is not able to obtain a loan from ordinary lending agencies.

(12) The Corporation is authorized to provide for the exchange of bonds and to advance cash for mortgages for the redemption and recapture of foreclosed homes, provided such loans occurred within two years prior to such exchange. This aid is conditioned on the same terms as given in paragraphs (4) and (5) above.

(13) The Home Loan Bank Board shall make rules governing the methods of appraisal to be followed.

(14) The Act does not provide cash to make new or original loans of any kind except for taxes, assessments, repairs, and maintenance, and where there is not a prior lien.

(15) Makes punishment by a fine of not more than $10,000 any violation of provision directed against persons attempting impositions on home owners in assistance rendered them in making loan applications or performing other services. Denies right to compensation to such persons except for purposes outlined in Act.

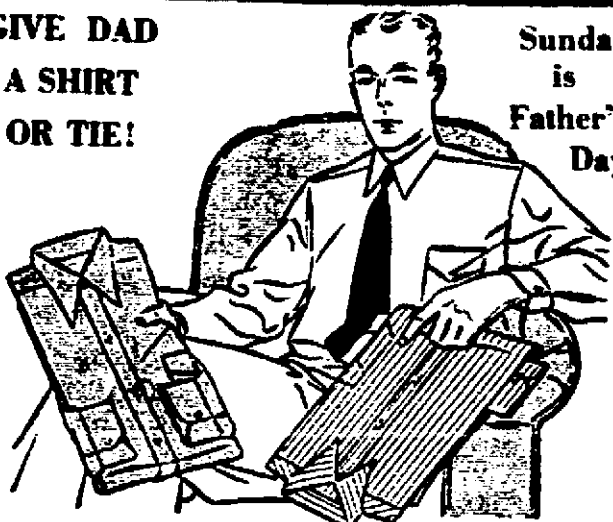

The Act then follows with provisions for the federal chartering of federal savings and loan associations, designed to promote community thrift and home financing means.

Wednesday the Business Girls Club of the Y. W. C. A. held a lunch supper. At the invitation of Miss Ellen Van Slyke, at her home, Rockhurst, on Marlin street. The weather was too cold for the party to be held out of doors so Miss Van Slyke arranged tables for her guests in her delightful dining room with a view of the city and the lake. The room was decorated with flowers and with everything new and comfortable. Following the lunch Miss Van Slyke gave a most interesting account of her trip to Spain illustrating the talk with pictures of the various cities and towns of the country. She spoke in particular of the stay in Malaga, a sea resort city in southern Spain, and of her visit to Seville.

Nairobi, Kenya, (P.)—Motorists crossing the sandy wastes of the Sahara can find their way by following a trail of empty bottles, said two British motorists who arrived here enroute from Liverpool to the Cape. EX-SOLDIER SEEKS HIS TRUE IDENTITY

Visits Many Army Posts in Search of Information.

El Paso, Texas.—A man who, since 1921, has gone under the name of El Evans, is receiving aid from United States army men and officers in establishing his true identity.

His familiarity with army regulations, and more particularly with flying routine and tactics, has caused Fort Bliss officers and men to become interested in his case.

Evans assumed his name in 1928, after he lost his memory.

At that time he landed in San Francisco, Calif., from Australia. For the last three years he has been working a copper claim in the Mogollon mountains.

Evans believes he was once a member of the Twenty-first Infantry, U. S. A., and that he was stationed at Fort Bliss, near here. That regiment never was stationed here, but veterans at Fort Bliss believe he was with the detachment at that post years ago. They believe he was on the unit's baseball team and have attempted to prove identification through a photograph of the team published in the Silver City (N. M.) newspaper. No fingerprints of soldiers were kept at that time and it is doubtful if Evans' connection with the regiment can be established.

In attempting to learn his true identity Evans has visited many army posts in the Southwest.

Once at Randolph field, San Antonio, Evans said, he was given permission to fly a plane. This was granted after an officer became convinced that his conversation showed he was formerly attached to a flying corps of the army.

His fingerprints are being compared with those on record at army posts.

Rule of Ohio Gangsters Marked by 7 Slayings

Cleveland.—Five years ago there were seven Porello brothers who worked for "Big Joe" and John Lonnardo, the corn sugar "kings," who supplied corn sugar to stills hidden away in cellars, attics, and back rooms. Today the Lonnardos are dead, shot from their throne, and four of the Porellos, too, have had costly funerals.

The Porello clan is generally credited with toppling the Lonnardos from their seats of power. "Big Joe" and John Lonnardo were slain in a barber shop October 13, 1927, and the Porellos took over their sugar cane "business."

The feud came soon enough. First "Black Sam" Todaro, a lieutenant, was killed. Next came Joe Porello, first of the brothers, and his bodyguard, Sam Tilocco, who met death July 5, 1930. Echoes of this double murder had scarcely died away when James Porello was killed as he was buying meat in a butcher shop. The death of Romano Porello was part of a triple killing. With him were Raymond Porello and Dominic Guelli.

Four Porellos were thus accounted for, and every survivor feared for his life. In the meantime the depression was also at work, and police had been keeping strict surveillance over the corn sugar sellers. The Porello family fortunes declined, and John Porello and his nephew, Angelo, moved to Buffalo. Recently Angelo fell in a gun battle in an argument with others over bootleg territory.

At The Theatres

Today
Kingston: "Diplomaniacs." Burlesque, in which these two comers, Bert Wheeler of the childlike ways, and Robert Woolsey, exponent of the lighted cigar, are the stars. It ridicules the Geneva Peace Conference in a big way, and the dialogue is replete with risqué statements, and some of the scenes might be classed as suggestive. Mr. Wheeler and Mr. Woolsey manage to get off some of their grand comedy, although they both seem a bit lost as the story carries them so where in particular. There is some good music, some chorus girls that know how to dance, and enough of a plot to keep the action moving. The "Beer-Schmelting" light pictures will continue through the week as an added attraction.

Orpheum: "Air Hostess" and "Dude Bandit." James Murray, Evelyn Knapp and Thelma Todd are all to be seen in the first double feature offering, an airplane story that has its share of thrills and excitement. "Dude Bandit" stars Hoot Gibson, and features Gloria Shea, "Skooter," Neal Hart and Gordon DeMaine, in a western picture that is far above the average.

Broadway: "Six Hours to Live." Warner Baxter is at his best in this strange story of a man brought from death back to life again. Mr. Baxter plays the part of a trusted government official, who is murdered by a political enemy during a world trade meeting because he refuses to get in to line. A noted scientist has invented a new life ray, a ray capable of bringing the dead back to life for a period of six hours. The picture deals with the swift and tragic six hours of life left to a man already dead. So capable is the acting, so original the story, so beautiful the photography and settings, that this talkie is something to see. Mr. Baxter gives his most realistic and enjoyable performance, one that will be remembered for its feeling and realism. Miriam Jordan is perfectly cast as the girl, with John Boles, George Marion, Sr., and several other featured players doing fine work in supporting roles.

Tomorrow.
Kingston: Same.
Orpheum: Same.
Broadway: "Elmer the Great." Joe E. Brown, who once was a big league ball player until he began to commercialize on his cavernous mouth, turns again to the national pastime in this, his latest talkie effort. Mr. Brown has made several commendable pictures during his career, but this is by far his best effort. It's the story of a small town boy who rises to the pinnacle of baseball fame, because of his ability to smack the ball far over the fences. There is one trouble with him. As long as everything runs smoothly, he puts one "homer" over the fence after another, but if there is any friction in the club, he becomes a ball of putty, unable to so much as look a baseball in the face. Fine comedy entertainment, with a cast that includes Patricia Ellis.

TRIBUTE PAID TO
MRS. JACOB V. MERRIHEW
West Shokan, June 16.—Olive residents learned with exceeding regret of the death of yet another former lifelong and highly esteemed citizen, Mrs. Jacob V. Merrihew, who died Monday in Kingston. She was born on the old Eckert homestead here and was the last survivor of the family of Thompson and Elizabeth Eckert. Mrs. Merrihew spent the years of her married life at Olive Bridge until moving to Kingston several years ago, when Mr. Merrihew was made an assistant under Sheriff Arthur Rice. Her record of accomplishments in the community where she spent so many years will stand undimmed through the march of time. Mrs. Merrihew truly was a woman possessed of many outstanding virtues. All sympathize greatly with the bereaved husband and daughter in the overwhelming loss which they have suffered. Many Olive folks attended the funeral held Thursday morning at the Carr undertaking parlors in Kingston and still others were present at the interment in the old section of the Tongore cemetery where rest the hallowed remains of her father and mother, also those of Mr. Merrihew's parents and other pioneer members of the family.

WEST SHOKAN SCHOOL PICNIC AT FORSYTH PARK

West Shokan, June 16.—All hands of the West Shokan school including the teacher, Mrs. West, her sister, Esther Risely, Helen Thompson, former pupil, now of Kingston High School, Irving Healey, another local graduate, Mrs. Arthur Snyder, Mrs. Frank Whittier, and the whole group chartered by Trustee Charles H. Weidner, formed a motoring party to Forsyth Park, Kingston, on Tuesday for the enjoyment of the annual school picnic. The weather was delightful for such an occasion and with the beautiful park with its attractions of animals and play grounds all made for the perfect combination. Each furnished his own lunch and fruit punch in abundance was supplied by the kindly Mrs. West. During the afternoon most of the crowd took in the movies and saw "Peg O' My Heart" starring Marion Davies. To make the affair complete after the show all enjoyed the sights of uptown Kingston.

Talks to parents

Mother's Disadvantage

By ALICE JUDSON FEALE
With enormous effort and concentration, 3-year-old Johnny has succeeded in fastening the six buttons down the front of his coat.
Mother, about to take him down town, looks at him, sees that he has buttoned it wrong, and exclaims, "Now see what you've done! I might much better have done it myself in the first place."

With a show of considerably more energy than the occasion requires, she unbuttons the offending coat and buttons it up again.

The incident is typical of the sort of mistake that a mother is likely to make and that the trained nursery school teacher does not make. Johnny, having buttoned his coat all by himself, no matter how badly, should only have been told how fine it was that he was learning to do this for himself and should have been permitted to wear it at least for a while, as it was.

The mother with knowledge of newer methods with children may know that this is what she should do, but she does not always have the patience or presence of mind to do it.

It is the sort of situation in which a trained nursery school teacher has an advantage over the mother. The teacher has nothing on her mind but the children in her charge. She need think of nothing else while she is with them.

The average mother, on the other hand, has always dozens of other things to think about while she is putting her children through their daily routine.
Here then, is one of the ways in which a nursery school can give a child a type of training which most mothers cannot give and it is a training of which mothers should be glad to avail themselves when they can.

was the winner in the fern contest.

On June 27 there will be a card party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Washington for the benefit of the Order of Eastern Star.

On Sunday, June 11, the Christian Endeavor of the Reformed Church enjoyed a picnic lunch near the Solvan Orden Farm. An outdoor meeting was also held.

John DuBois of Florida, is spending a few days with his parents in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor W. Simons of Glen Rock, N. J., spent Monday with friends in this vicinity.

German Chancellor Emulates Frederick The Great With Six-Footers In Personal Troop

Strapping 6-footers have been picked from Germany's brown shirts to act as bodyguards for Chancellor Hitler.

Berlin, (AP).—Adolf Hitler has selected a bodyguard of exceptionally tall and physically fit storm troopers. He thereby emulates the example of Frederick The Great whom he has held up to nazis as the incarnation of the true Prussian spirit. The soldier king's pet hobby was his regiment of "lange kerls," which translates literally as "long fellows."

Like Frederick's regiment, the present "lange kerls" are each more than 20 years old and more than six feet tall. Their leader, Martin Kohl-fusser of Munich, is six inches over that standard, towering head and shoulders above his chief.

Black uniforms and glossy black helmets distinguish the picked troopers from the ordinary brown shirts. They are constantly on duty at the chancellery and act as personal couriers as well as bodyguards.

The detachment leads a clock-like life. The recompense is that each select trooper hopes some day to command a regiment of storm troop-

Little Stories for Bedtime

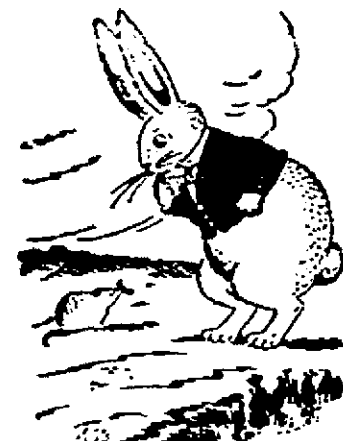

by Thornton W. Burgess

PETER AND SHORT-TAIL BECOME FRIENDS

When a gentle, kindly word comes to a rabbit's ears, it is a pleasant way to begin a friendship.

Now, when Peter Rabbit was so young, and spoke in such a pleasant way, and said he hoped they might become friends, what could Short-Tail have said? He didn't say he hoped so, too? He didn't say it very pleasantly, for he had not quite got over being a bit angry at being taken for a member of the Mole family. You know, any one with any pride at all dislikes to be taken for anybody but himself. And if the truth is to be told, Short-Tail the Shrew felt that his own family was just a wee bit above the family of Miner the Mole. So, Short-Tail the Shrew had resented being taken for a Mole.

"Oh, You'll Find Me Around If You Use Your Eyes," Replied Short-Tail.

But no one could be angry with Peter Rabbit for very long. Besides, he had looked so funny when he had discovered his mistake that Short-Tail had wanted to laugh in spite of his resentment.

"There isn't any reason that I know of why we shouldn't become acquainted," said Short-Tail, in his high, sharp squeaky voice. "As I told you before, I am pretty well acquainted with you already. If you want to get acquainted with me, and learn a little that you don't know, come around and see me once in a while."

"I'll come," declared Peter. "I'll come often. Where did you say your home is?"

"I didn't say," grinned Short-Tail. "What is more, I don't intend to say. Some folks may feel safe in their homes where they are, but the fewer who know where my home is, the better pleased I'll be."

Peter looked as he felt—disappointed. "But if you won't tell me where you live, how am I going to find you?" he protested.

"Oh, you'll find me around if you use your eyes," replied Short-Tail. "Speaking of eyes, I don't like so much light, so you'll have to excuse me if I get back under that old log."

Saying this, Short-Tail started back under the log. "Will I find you under this log when I call on you?" asked Peter.

"Don't know. Can't say. Maybe. Maybe not. Never know where I am going to be another day. Maybe in Hooty the Owl's stomach. Ha, ha, ha!" All this was said lightly, and in that funny, squeaky voice.

"Don't joke like that, because it might come true, and that would be dreadful," said Peter. "If you are not here, where may I look for you?"

"Look where you please. Ha, ha, ha, look where you please," retorted the funny little fellow under the log. Then as Peter looked hurt, he hastened to add: "If you use your eyes, Peter Rabbit, you'll see my private little paths, and if you follow these, very likely we'll meet somewhere. Now, please excuse me, because I am half starved. I haven't had a mouthful since we began to talk, and it certainly does make a fellow hungry to go without food so long."

Peter caught a glimpse of a little form disappearing among the leaves. He looked up at Happy Jack Squirrel with a puzzled look on his face. "He spoke as if he really meant that he was half starved, yet it is only a few minutes since we met," said he. "How could anyone get hungry in such a few minutes?"

"You don't know the Shrew family, Peter," replied Happy Jack. "I never have seen such eaters as they are."

Howe About:

Our Legal System
Captain and Pastor
Sarah Bernhardt

By ED HOWE

WE NOW know Samuel Inell was a very bad man. How much of his bad conduct was recommended to him as legal by his lawyers? Inell didn't want all or half of the schemes which cost seven hundred million dollars for lawyers. What proportion of them were invented by his attorneys? As to the records in Inell's case, and as to many astounding court decisions in his favor may be found.

One of the admissions we must finally make is that our legal system is as bad as our political system, and as much in need of purging. The Constitution we have so long been taught (by lawyers) to respect is kicked about by lawyers and judges as little boys kick a football.

And this is not the saving of a countryman; every reasonable honest and intelligent judge and lawyer says so.

The departure from morals which has resulted in so much trouble for the world is not confined to politics, parked automobiles in dark places, or to banks, or to politics, but has reached every phase of our existence.

There was once a sea captain said to be a backslider, and a pastor called to talk to him.

"You have a compass with which to guide your ship," said the good man, "yet you have not a single guide to your moral conduct."

I heard the story from the religious when a boy, and have been hearing it ever since. It has always seemed to me foolish; I do not like art of that kind. A sea captain goes everywhere; sees everything. What moral guide can such a man lack that a modest and secluded pastor may possess?

It is an enormous statement for a small man to make, but I believe moral teaching has been wrong from the beginning. Always we have mixed the gods with it, although the gods have never had anything to do with the case. There is no sound recommendation for better behavior beyond the simple truth that honesty is the best policy.

I wonder Sarah Bernhardt is not used instead of P. T. Barnum as an extreme example of the successful publicity seeker. When nothing else offered to attract attention to her, she set fire to her own room. And if we had honest criticism and honest public opinion, I do not believe she would be rated as a moderately good actress.

One rough old writing rascal, in his references to women, frequently said: "Remember the whip!"

Probably he was an advocate of whipping good women; he seems to have admired all such, and history records he was often ridiculous in running after them.

What he probably meant was that had Louis XVI whipped his queen for fanatical devotion to bad men, and Oscar Nicholas whipped the czarina for fanatical devotion to bad religion, the lives of millions of good women and children would have been enormously bettered.

Both these foolish women lost their lives because of mistaken enthusiasm for bad causes: the czarina's husband and children were murdered with her. (Note that the czarina, whose specialty was gross immorality, was worse punished than the queen whose specialty was gross immorality.) I sometimes regret one of the queen's surviving sons was not executed with her; because of his mother's neglect of her home he was the worst boy of his age (eight) recorded in history.

I have never known a husband not a little ashamed if he failed to properly control his household; and the Bible strongly hints every husband has such a right and duty.

Most people will read only that with which they agree.

I believe Oscar Wilde was mistaken in more ways than any other man who ever lived, but have just read his "De Profundis" with interest, as I have read many of his other books and plays.

He was the foulest man of whom I have ever heard, and possibly one of the most intelligent; certainly one of the world's best writers. I cannot refuse to read such a man because I do not always agree with him.

He wrote many plays that sparkle with intelligence and wit, but in his "Salome" I cannot see a single reason why it should have been written, or why anyone should wish to read it: foul, silly, bloody, and, fortunately, a failure. He was that uneven in everything.

I have never known a single human being of whom I entirely approved; I have never entirely approved of myself.

It is frequently said during the present hard times: "The honest and thrifty are in a better state than the crafty and wasteful." All have been cruelly hurt, but there never was a time when the honest and thrifty were not a little better off than the careless and dishonest.

In the smaller affairs to which men are daily accustomed they are frequently quite capable, but when they become warriors or statesmen or are placed on exhibition in other large ways, they are usually ridiculous.

INTERESTING EVENTS IN LIFE OF ZADOC BARRINGER

West Shokan, June 16.—Some of the interesting phases in the long life of Zadoc Barringer of Samosville has been brought to the notice of the local correspondent since Mr. Barringer's recent death. He was born on the old family homestead now occupied by his son, Louis, and family, on October 11, 1849, spent his venerable lifetime there and died June 6, 1933, in the house where he first saw the light of day and in later years raised his family. He chose for his life's companion, now some years deceased, Samantha Bell of the Bushkill section, whom he married May 4, 1872. She was a sister of Assessor Nelson Bell of Shokan. They were the parents of four sons, Arthur, Otis, with whom he made his home, and Irvin and Elmer, also one daughter, Mrs. Julia Van Kleeck, of Kingston, widow of the late Henry Van Kleeck. There are 23 grandchildren and eight great grandchildren.

Mr. Barringer was of a quiet, unassuming disposition, he had no desire for public office or outward display but lived instead the life of a hillside farmer. He watched the flood tide of the green tanning and lumbering days and saw the gradual ebbing into its final oblivion of this once thriving industry which had made for Samosville a noteworthy business center, employing hundreds of men and dozens of teams. With the burning of the great tannery about 1873 Samosville was dealt a blow from which it never recovered as had been the case in Watson Hollow a half dozen years previous.

Mr. Barringer, the farmer, was an honest, law-abiding and God-fearing citizen, one who will be remembered by everyone as a good neighbor, and by his family as a kind and loving husband and father. His death has removed one of the last remaining rugged landmarks of Samosville's halcyon days. The funeral of Mr. Barringer was held on Friday, June 9, in the Samosville M. E. Church. He was inclined toward the staunch old school Baptist doctrine and Elder Hubbell, pastor of the Olive congregation, officiated at the service.

It is a request of the family that their thanks be extended to those who furnished flowers or otherwise showed kindly favor in their time of sorrow.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Chicago, June 16 (AP).—The College Art Association was told by Harold Stark, lecturer, that art must have the stigma of effeminacy and "cheap Bohemianism" removed to find a useful place in the daily life of schools and colleges.

"Art, long the 'mist' of the college galaxy of gods, must be elevated," he said.

Bullies Out

Erie, Pa.—Edward Miller, 44, former baseball player, has umpired his last game.

Two city teams were playing. "Strike!" Miller called. Then he collapsed behind home plate and died.

No More, Please!

Concord, N. C.—Hereafter when he makes an address, says the Rev. Paul Hardin, Jr., Methodist minister, he is going to request there be no music.

His reasons: At the conclusion of a recent sermon a male quartet began singing "Now Tedious and Tasteless." When he finished a baccalaureate sermon to the high school graduates the Glee Club sang "Awake! Awake!"

And She Dies

New Philadelphia, O.—Charges that her husband, Clarence O. Centoben, had not taken a bath in five years and had limited her to the use of two matches a day were contained in the divorce petition filed by Mrs. Eunice O. Centoben, Dennison, O.

Swan Song of the Sax

San Francisco—T. J. Kennedy, San Francisco director of R. O. T. C. and high school bands and for 22 years a Navy bandmaster, advised musically inclined young people to study the flute, guitar, trombone or almost anything but the saxophone. Its days of popularity are about over, he declared.

Shirt Stiffening

Bend, Ore.—"That's the gold in them shirt shirts," observed French Butler, local laundryman, as he examined freshly washed garments. Bend gets its water from the south fork of Tumalo Creek, scene of gold mining operations. Fine flakes of gold were in the laundry water.

The attendants had got excited because a year ago Sam ran away, went swimming, and was almost drowned.

First Printers Imitated Writing
Neither the inventor of printing nor his immediate successors were aware of what they had achieved or were doing. They were anxious only to imitate the hand-written book and at first take the hand-written book and at first charge as much for their product as charged so much for their product as charged to persuade the customer that theirs was no new invention but the same laboriously written script work.

Financial and Commercial

New York, June 16 (AP)—Further symptoms of the "dollar crisis" appeared in the money market today as bankers and traders attempted to pierce the mystic veil of foreign exchange variations.

After their severe trouncing of yesterday, displayed rallying tendency in the first hour with a number of the leaders recovering 1 to 2 points. The dollar also lost ground in terms of the Anglo-American stabilization program gave some hope to proponents of the rise, and short covering progressed at a fast pace for a time. Recoveries failed to hold very long, however, and soon there was another rush to transfer commitments. Rallies and declines followed in rapid order, but it was noticeable that volume expanded.

Commodities moved about as inactively as shares. Wheat, corn and cotton moved slightly lower at one time, then came back with stocks. They subsequently drifted to irregular channels. Bar silver continued to sag, losing 1/4 of a cent as ounce at 35 1/2 cents. Bonds of the secondary classes were rather heavy, but the higher grade loans were fairly steady.

Stocks that managed to get back fractions to around 2 points included American Telephone, Allied Chemical, DuPont, Johns Manville, U. S. Steel, Consolidated Gas, Standard Oil of New Jersey, American Smelting, International Harvester, Sears Roebuck, Case, U. S. Smelting, General Motors, and Columbia Gas. The mining stocks were nervous. Homestake dropping 14 points at one time to 201. Only a few days ago this issue sold at 250. Although Union Pacific and Santa Fe showed some resistance, the rails generally were indifferent.

While international factors were for the moment, the motivating influence in the market, many traders continued to watch with interest the situation of the business and industrial structure throughout the United States. Week-end trade reviews reported little cessation in the demand for goods and commodities. That inflationary psychology is not now the sole impetus of the forward push was stressed by leading surveys of conditions.

BONERS

Rameses left mummies of himself all over Egypt.

BONERS are actual humorous tid-bits found in examination papers, essays, etc., by teachers.

The finest animals on earth are ground mice.

Three birds that have black feathers are the crow, raven, and falbird.

Watered stock is cows put out to pasture beside a running stream.

Space between the bones is filled with mullage.

FORESTS INFLUENCE OUR MARKET BASKET

Wood Is Indispensable in "Metal Civilization."

Washington—Articles ranging from telephone poles to canisters are among the millions of objects made of wood which the present "metal civilization" does not dispense. Even before the invention of the President's forestry camps, lumbering, practiced by the number of persons engaged in it, was one of the largest industries in the United States, according to a bulletin from the National Geographic Society.

Lumbering and forestry, as they are at present practiced, vary widely in their aims although the cutting of wood is a factor in both. The bulk of the lumbering is the term used for the cutting of timber for an immediate gain, while forestry carries the conception of long-time planning for continuous income. If trees are stripped carelessly from land, it is frequently left open to alternate floods and droughts. Much of it becomes worthless for agriculture or recreation and can support little animal life.

Many National Forests.

"When white men came to America, it is estimated that there were 1,000,000 square miles of forest between the Atlantic ocean and the prairies. In what is now the West of the United States there were 200,000 square miles. This million and a quarter square miles of forests had been reduced to 133,554 square miles in 1928. Over half of this remainder had been selectively cut over, leaving the smaller trees for future growth. Of the original forests 126,553 square miles were cut so ruthlessly that the land is now practically useless.

"To discourage further devastation of the country by thoughtless lumbering methods, the government organized the forest service. The areas under the supervision of this service are the tree-covered public lands in the West which were not taken up by homesteaders, and forests purchased from private owners in the East. At present there are national forests in 31 states. Plans have been made for camps for the unemployed in the national forests of all these states. In states having no national forests, similar camps will be established in state forests or on private land.

"During the past quarter century, the government has emphasized the value of forests for the whole country. For the farmer—and the 1930 census showed over 50 per cent of the population living in rural areas—there are two great problems that are affected by forestry practice. One is erosion, or the washing away of the valuable top soil; the other is the distribution of rain water. If there are no trees or cover crops to slow up the rain water as it runs down the slopes, erosion is unavoidable. Thus water which should seep down to the valleys through a period of weeks, rushes in torrents down the stream beds, causing floods in the valleys followed by long periods of drought.

"Aside from the protection of farm lands and conservation of moisture, national forests bring the government a direct revenue in various ways. Full grown timber and cord wood are sold; grazing lands are rented; water power concessions are leased; drinking water is furnished large cities; and irrigating systems are provided. These projects have proved so remunerative that even with the expense of seeding new sections, and pruning, thinning, and clearing underbrush in the older growths, many of the national forests have been put on a self-supporting basis. From their income some national forests contribute to the treasures of counties and states in which they are situated.

Fire Prevention.

"Perhaps the largest single expenditure for forestry is for fire prevention. The toll of life is not ordinarily great, deaths from forest fires rarely running over 50 persons a year; but the damage to forests and the dependent water districts has been found to amount to millions of dollars. To avoid this loss lookouts are placed on high points of national forests and constant watch is kept for the telltale smoke. Forest rangers now frequently are successful in beating out fires before they have passed the possibility of control. Public education has done much to limit the horror and waste of these fires; but one unavoidable cause, lightning, accounts for more than 25 per cent of the fires.

"The forest service has been quick to see the recreational possibilities of the forests, and roads have been built, hiking clubs encouraged, lake shores cleared, trails broken, and camping grounds established, so that tourists, climbing enthusiasts, fishermen, and hunters may have an opportunity to indulge in their favorite avocations. Summer home sites have been leased in a number of the forests for those who wish to live a more settled life in the woods. Botanists and zoologists have keenly supported the forestry movement, so that rare plants and animals might be preserved.

"The forest service has taken with it roads, telephones, radio, and other instruments of civilization and has brought prospering opportunities to formerly isolated spots, many of them of striking scenic beauty. It has given a new vision to many lumbermen, persuading them that ultimate good for the country can be achieved and great harm averted by substituting the ideal of forestry for that of lumbering."

SHOKAN

Shokan, June 16.—On Sunday evening, June 16, an illustrated lecture, "Seeing Mexico," will be given in the Reformed Church in Mr. Tremper, beginning at 8 o'clock. The lecture, which is the third of a series of church activities and history by the Rev. August Pfanz, will be repeated in the Reformed Church on Thursday evening, June 15, at 8:30.

Millard Bell and family have returned from the Lewis and Clark trip near the state road to one of William Colledge's houses on the west side of the reservoir where Mr. Bell is in the employ of the Colledge Bros. The Bells have many friends and relatives in Shokan who regret their departure from this section.

Mrs. Earl Elmendorf accompanied her mother, Mrs. Kenny, to the latter's home in Boston, Mass., earlier in the week. Mrs. Kenny has been spending the past month with Mr. and Mrs. Elmendorf at their home in the village center.

Allan Hughes and family of New Jersey were Wednesday night visitors at the home of Mr. Hughes's father, Francis Hughes, and sister, Mrs. S. Nadai, on Van Steenburgh road.

The sum of $25 was cleared at the Ladies Aid Society's supper held in the church hall on Wednesday evening. The supper menu consisted of the following dishes: Meat loaf, potato salad, asparagus, green onions, radishes, rolls, coffee and strawberry shortcake. The color scheme of the dining room was pink and green; roses filled the windows and lighted pink candles were on the two long tables. The supper was a very pleasing social affair, much enjoyed by the many persons present.

Local real estate transactions of June 16, 1933, were those of parcels of land in Shokan from Thomas Hill to William Windrum and John W. Lane. Mr. Hill was a member of a family originally owning a large part of the land on which the old village was located; Mr. Windrum was the father of the late John W. Windrum and a grandfather of William and Carl Windrum of Kerhonkson, while Mr. Lane was an early carpenter and undertaker whose place adjoined that of Mr. Windrum on the east.

On Sunday evening, June 18, in the Shokan Reformed Church, the first of a series of vespers services will be conducted by the Rev. August Pfanz, pastor of the church. The services will begin at 7:30 o'clock.

The Shokan Home Bureau picnic, held on Tuesday afternoon at the weir pool rocks below the main dam, was greatly enjoyed by the members and their guests who were present. The luncheon consisted of salad, sandwiches, potato chips, cheese, conserve, maple sugar, ice cream and coffee. Following the business meeting several of the ladies enjoyed a swim in the pool.

Mrs. Philip Chopar and son George of Brooklyn are visiting at the home of Mrs. Chopar's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Gilet. William Personous received a shipment of White Leghorn chicks earlier in the week. Mr. Personous,

Flourishing Begonia Trees
Continuing to popular demand, flowering plants are not active only to the more temperate districts, but may be found growing in most of the acid soil districts except possibly the extreme northern section. Red acidity, or sourness, is a necessary for proper growth. They will live in a neutral or alkaline soil, but are unhappy and show it by poor growth and infrequent flowering.

Integration of Cleveland
There were 100,000 visitors in Washington the day Cleveland was "inaugurated." For the first time since the Civil War the South took part in the celebration. A colorful part of the parade was the Story-march New York regiment, its band playing the "March of the Green." The Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, its officers carrying muskets.

Mickey McGlynn Makes a Short For Paramount

Miss Mickey McGlynn, formerly one of Kingston's outstanding amateur theatrical stars, is now doing movie work. Saturday, June 10, she made a reversed short for Paramount, Hearst and Fox which was shown at the Rivoli Theatre at Broadway and 45th street, New York city, Thursday night.

The scenes in which Miss McGlynn appears were taken on Times Square at 44th and 45th streets and also at Central Park and the Columbus Circle Road at 82nd street. Working with the former Kingston stage favorite was Jack Stone late of "Hunky Dory" and "Man Bites Dog."

Bathing suits, high-heeled slippers, hats and gloves composed the attire worn by Miss McGlynn for the new reel showing what is being worn this summer in New York by "the best people." A Paramount announcer comments on the styles as Mickey poses.

Regarding her experience in the movies, Miss McGlynn writes: "As my first, although small start in screen work, I found it really very interesting and just lots of fun."

She said she hoped her friends in Kingston might be able to see her soon at one of the local theatres in the near future.

Mickey Mack is the professional name under which Miss McGlynn works and her address, in case friends here might wish to communicate with her, is Hotel Plymouth, 49th street, New York city.

Her veil of chantilly lace was worn cap style and held in place by bands of seed pearls, orange blossoms and lilies of the valley. Her shower bouquet was made up of bride's roses, snapdragons and gypsophylla tied with white tulle. She was attended by Mrs. Cecil Houck, as matron of honor, who wore a yellow dress and carried a bouquet of tall-man roses, snapdragons and gypsophylla, also tied with tulle. The flower girls were Virginia Swick and Dorothy Burger, dressed in blue and pink organdie dresses and carried baskets of flowers. The ring bearer was little Dorothy Charles, who wore a white organdie dress and carried the ring on an organdie pillow. The bridesmaids, Miss Ruth Price, Miss Clara Godfrey, Miss Ida Dolkus and Miss Anna Ferry, were gown in yellow and blue organdie dresses and carried bouquets of carnations and snapdragons. Throughout the ceremony the harpist played "O Promise Me." A dinner was served the bride party at the Belvedere Restaurant where they were met by several friends, who showered the happy couple with rice and confetti. Mr. and Mrs. Kipp left on a short honeymoon and have returned to Walton to make their home. Mr. Kipp is a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Wyman of this village. Mr. Kipp and his parents were formerly of Ellenville.

Dairymen Lose To Gardeners, Who Are Rescued By Joyce

Bill's Gardeners tripped the Clow Dairymen in their march toward the pennant in the first half of the City League at the Athletic Field Thursday evening. The score was 5 to 1 and the defeat eliminated the Dairymen from further consideration in the first half, leaving the Morgan Repealers and the Schryver Lumbermen to fight it out. The Repealers need but one more victory to clinch it, while the Lumbermen need all their remaining games for a tie. These two teams meet next Wednesday.

The Gardeners had to come from behind to overcome a big lead to win the game. Going into the fourth inning the score was 4-1 against them. They took advantage of a few Dairymen misplays and scored enough runs in the fourth and fifth innings to put the game in the bag.

"Pucker" Davis, pitching for the Dairymen, sailed along nicely for the first three innings, but in the fourth he weakened. He finished the inning and started the fifth, but failed to last. Adolph Stumpf relieved Davis and held the Gardeners in check, not allowing a hit.

Hank Cragan and Paul Joyce shared the pitching duties for the Gardeners. Cragan started and lasted four innings. Joyce went to his rescue in the fifth. Four hits were made off Cragan's delivery, one off Joyce's. All the Dairymen's runs were scored while Cragan was in the box.

The Dairymen started the game as if they were going to win it in a hurry, scoring three times in the first inning. Kreppel opened the inning by drawing a pass. Carr singled to right field and Quest received a walk to fill the bases. Stumpf hit to Moore and Kreppel tallied on a close play at home. Didzik drove both Carr and Quest home with a single through the infield.

"Kid" Moore, who registered three times for the Gardeners, scored the first run in the first inning. He got a life when Lenahan booted his grounder and reached second while Johnson walked. He took third on a passed ball and dented the rubber on Dawkins' single to right field.

"Pucker" Davis poled a double to left field in the second inning and put the Dairymen in scoring position again. Kreppel grounded to Cullum, who fumbled and Davis scored. Kreppel stole second, advanced to third on Messinger's wide throw and crossed the platter on an infield out to make the score 5-1. The Dairymen's last run came in the fourth inning.

Bill Schwab started the Gardeners off with a single in their first rally in the fourth inning. Tierney also singled and Moore drew a pass to fill the sacks. Lenahan booted Fraleigh's grounder, which allowed Schwab to score, and Joyce singled to bring Tierney and Moore home.

The Gardeners' second rally in the fifth inning netted them four runs. Jimmy Fraleigh patterned a double to send in three runners in this chukker.

SIDELINERS

Manager Mat Lenahan replaced Kreppel in favor of Kelly in the fifth inning and the move lost the game for him. Kreppel would have caught Fraleigh's double easily.

Marty Carr was hit by a pitched ball in the sixth inning and had to retire.

The box of King Stone cigars is still safe in the Medicine Chest.

Bud Tierney got a hit. The score:

Schryvers Meet Hogans Tonight

The Schryver Lumbermen, who still have a chance of coming out on top in the first half of City League, will stack up against the Van Etten & Hogan Truckers at the Athletic Field this evening. There is a probability of Willard Thomas being on the mound for the Lumbermen. Thomas turned in a good record while at college, winning four straight games. If he isn't ready to pitch Big Ed Wilson will do the honors. Jack Robins will do the catching. "Harlem Bill" Lee or Johnny Johnson will do mound duty for the Truckers. Cleveland Thomas or Jeff Gordon will do the receiving.

Tagging Major League Bases

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR. (Associated Press Sports Writer)

The Boston Red Sox, cellar dwellers of the American League almost since time immemorial, have climbed out of their usual position to the dizzy heights of seventh place.

This is nothing new for the rejuvenated Red Sox of 1933—at one time during the second week of the campaign they were as high as seventh place—nor was their rise entirely unexpected. But the way in which they accomplished the feat of leaving the cellar made it appear that they have no intention of returning.

The humble tail-enders picked on the New York Yankees, world's champions and league leaders, as the instrument of their rise and won four straight games. An 8 to 5 triumph yesterday finally lifted them above the idle St. Louis Browns by the slim margin of a half game, which figures out to a single percentage point at the present stage of the race.

Spirit Better

Perhaps the most noticeable improvement in the Boston team this season is its improved spirit and morale and it was that as much as anything else that enabled them to win yesterday. The Yanks cut loose with a couple of home runs, including Tony Lazzeri's eleventh, and tied the score in the seventh inning. The Sox promptly came back with some terrific slugging on their own part and, with the aid of circuit blows by Marty McManus and Roy Johnson, tallied five times in the same stanza to win the ball game.

The Yankee-Red Sox tilt was the only one played in the junior circuit as Cleveland and Detroit were rained out and the other clubs had an open date.

Cubs Blank Pirates 5-0

The continued progress of the Chicago Cubs, who heaped further indignities upon the Pittsburgh Pirates, furnished the main interest in the National League, aside from a series of last minute player trades before the time-limit for such deals at midnight last night.

The Cubs walloped the Pirates 5-0 behind Lyle Tinning's four hit pitching and cut the distance between fourth place and third to one game. Tinning was wild but effective in the pinches. The finishing blow was supplied by Frank Demaree, who hit a homer with two on base in the fourth. George Gibson, Pirate manager, lodged a protest on the game over a "hidden ball" trick worked on Pitcher Hal Smith after an argument around second base.

Giants Taste Defeat

The Boston Braves finally turned out on the New York Giants and handed out a 7-4 victory, scoring all but one of their runs in the fourth inning while Ed Fallenstein and Tom Zachary rendered 16 Giant hits ineffective. With St. Louis and Cincinnati enjoying a day of idleness, New York remained in first place a half game ahead of the Cardinals.

The Brooklyn Dodgers cut loose with some of their heaviest hitting of the season, piling up 21 safeties to defeat the Phillies 9 to 3.

Hollis Thurston, Dodgers, helped win own game against Phillies, hitting two doubles and batting in four runs.

Roy Johnson, Red Sox—Hit homer with two on in eighth to clinch victory over Yankees.

Ed Fallenstein, Braves—Pitched effective ball against Giants and drove in two runs.

Lyle Tinning, Cubs—Blanked Pirates with four hits, winning 5-0.

All Stars to Drill For Black Sox Game

The Kingston All Stars will hold a workout tonight at 6:30 on the Kingston Fair Grounds diamond in preparation for their game Sunday on the same field with Albany Black Sox, one of the outstanding colored clubs of the capital district. Batting, practice, fielding and signal drills will compose the major part of the workout.

It is the contention of the All Stars that Sunday's game will be their hardest to date. The Black Sox have taken over some of the best semi-pro clubs in northern New York, including Buck Ewing's Stars. They beat this famous band of negroes by the score of 7-5 about two weeks ago.

Booking Manager John McCordie had the following to say for the information of fans: "After what happened last Sunday—the failure of the Rensselaer Giants to show up—we booked the Black Sox at great expense. They are costing plenty but we want to make up for the mishap. The Black Sox are the best colored club booked for an appearance here in some time."

Starting time of the game is 3:15 o'clock.

Thackeray's "Murder"
Thackeray, the famous English novelist, from his study one day heard his friends talking in the street, and looking out the window, he shouted to them: "Walt till I have killed you!" and "I'll be with you!" the "kill" of course, being only in his mind.

Have we forgotten? Let's remember. And light again the fading ember. Of other days with less of scheming. With less of dream but more of dreaming.

Have we forgotten? Let us never! We two are still as rich as ever. Yes, richer if this rougher weather Shall make us dream again together.

Have We Forgotten?

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

HAVE we forgotten, mounting losses And sadly counting as our crown?

The absent one, the missing pleasure, As though these were our only treasure, Have we forgotten days behind us?

And do these little losses bind us To larger things, less rich, less clever, We dreamed, and won, and have far—

Have we forgotten all the walking Together arm-in-arm and talking, And asking this—not asking whether We might be rich, but be together?

Have we forgotten, love beside us, How little would have satisfied us, The things that set our pulses leaping, That we have kept, may go on keeping?

Have we forgotten? Let's remember, And light again the fading ember, Of other days with less of scheming, With less of dream but more of dreaming.

Have we forgotten? Let us never! We two are still as rich as ever, Yes, richer if this rougher weather Shall make us dream again together.

Madison's Inauguration

When James Madison was inaugurated in 1800 the senate was not occupying its usual chamber, but sat in the library room, considered much too small for an inaugural ceremony. But the new hall of the house of representatives, now Statuary hall, had been recently completed, so the oath was administered there. It was after this ceremony that the first inaugural reception, and later a ball, were held, the former at the White House, the latter at Long's hotel.

The Special Session And Its Emergency "Pulmotor"

The special session of congress moved toward adjournment with a record of legislation unprecedented in peace time. Outstanding cogs of the recovery machine it fashioned—a "pulmotor" designed to revive lagging business—are measures to balance the budget, supervised by Lewis Douglas, budget director; to expand credit, with William H. Woodin, treasury secretary, immediately in charge; to coordinate railways and end cut-throat competition, a job entrusted to Joseph B. Eastman; to unite industry in a cooperative effort to restore prosperity, with Col. Hugh M. Johnson directing; and to bring relief to the farmer, a task in charge of George N. Peek. The whole machine is designed to revitalize about President Roosevelt's far-reaching program designed to aid the rehabilitation of industry.

The Real American Baseball
Formerly the best horseshoe from Asia and the finest wool from Australia were used in making American baseballs. The test of time has proved that similar domestic materials are as good as the pick of the imported skins. The ball cover, comprising a square inches of leather, is stitched and sewed by hand, as attempts to use machine ingenuity to that task have thus far failed.

Birches of New England
There is an Indian legend that accounts for the origin of the white, yellow, gray and black birches of New England, says the American Forestry association. They are believed to have been created by the Great Spirit to symbolize the developments affecting his people in New England after the white people came to this country. The yellow and white birches were created first, according to the legend.

During the past six weeks these young men have been attending the services at Ascension Church and have helped in various programs in the parish house. Their talent has been much appreciated and all who have heard them before are looking forward with much interest to this first entire program which they are offering. The program is as follows:

A small admission fee will be charged for the entertainment. A card party will be held at Ascension Community House, West Park, on Friday, June 30, at 2:30 o'clock under the auspices of a special committee of which Mrs. Alton B. Parker is chairman. New Novel Ensembles Are Shown in Novelty Weaves
Wools designed by Rodier for these first spring coats and frocks show new weaves and color combinations. They are woven with a surface often threaded with rabbit hairs to give a soft finish and occasionally splashed with white hairs for frosty effect.

Wiglap (a firm wool woven with rabbit hairs), plunlap (a crepey wool woven with rabbit hairs) and diebure (a heavy wool splashed with white hairs) are among the outstanding.

Match It Up
A new match-it-up accessory are plain pumps that can be worn adorned or with selections from an assortment of bows to match the occasion.

Indians Farmed in Ohio
The Indians once had about 400 acres of cultivated land within the present boundaries of Delaware, Ohio.

Complaint of an aged local person: "After you get to be about 50 old there is something out of kilter with you all the time."

Youth—Will you give us ten cents to help the old ladies' home?
Business Man—What? Are they out again?

You can tell an able business executive today, by the company he keeps.

Woman is a born gambler. She seems to spend most of her time winning men and losing weight.

Ask me another: What are the most common forms of holdups?
Answer: A man's suspenders and a woman's garters.

Girlie—Oh, dear, I've lost my little pink bow!
Boy Friend—How perfectly awful! What did he look like?

General Sherman said that war was "hell". Wouldn't you like to hear his description of an economic depression?

Home should be a place where joy is doubled by companionship and trouble halved by sympathy.

Jones (mowing his lawn, hot and tired)—Hullo! Your father wants to borrow something as usual, I suppose?

Neighbor's Boy—Yes, please, Mr. Jones. He says could you 'bige him with the loan of a corkscrew?
Jones (enthusiastically)—Corkscrew? Certainly! You run along, Bobby—I'll bring it right over myself.

The right kind of fight news would be to read that a lot more fellows are taking daily punches at the time clock.

Football Coach (running up to injured player)—Migosh, man! Are you double-jointed?
Player—No.
Coach—Well, then, you have broken a leg.

A news story tells about a man and his six sons, each of whom is more than six feet and a half tall. We'll bet a thin dime it's one of these fellows who always takes a seat just in front of us in the show.

Man—I found a four-leaf clover on my lawn today.
Neighbor—I suppose you think that's lucky?
Man—I do. I'm lucky to find anything in that lawn except dandelions and weeds.

It doesn't take a young man long to realize that a girl's complexion does not taste near as good as it looks.

Things go by opposites. For instance, when a man clerk takes a vacation he just sits around on a river bank and feels sorry for the people who have to work. When a woman clerk gets a vacation she cleans the house, paints the floors, cans fruit and vegetables, polishes the floors and weeds the flowers. The man goes back to the store all worn out. The woman goes back with a smile on her face.

Some of those who called themselves suckers, two years ago, are back in the stock markets again.

Man—What cured Fred Hynes of arguing with his wife?
Neighbor—Arguing with his wife.

He—People living together get to look alike.
She—Here's your ring. I dare not risk it.

FLOWERS FOR PATIENTS AT TUBERCULOSIS HOSPITAL

The ladies of the Ulster County Garden Club who have held such a delightful display of flower arrangements in the windows of Burgevin's florist shop for two days have very kindly, at the request of Mrs. Fred Warren, given the flowers exhibited to the ladies of the TB Hospital Auxiliary to present to the patients.

Miss Eleanor Van Deusen, well-known for her skill in arranging bouquets has given generously of her time in helping, although only in Kingston for a short visit.

The patients wish to thank the Garden Club for contributing so to their happiness. David Burgevin, with his genius for pleasing, included a large bouquet from the store and many thanks are offered him for his generosity.

Flowers are always much appreciated by the shut-ins and any friends that have an oversupply in their gardens these summer months will make the days cheerier by sending or better still bringing them to the hospital and seeing them gratefully accepted.

Lights of NEW YORK

Society is returning to Central park in increasing numbers. The socially select are returning to the park. Nowdays observers may note members of the Junior League giving over the long asphalt stretch on the Mall on roller skates along with youngsters from the tenements, matrons listed in the Social Register, and ice men. Celebrations of the stage and screen also go to the park to skate. On a recent Sunday afternoon I noticed, among others, Beatrice Little and Ethel Barrymore. It's quite the thing to give a Casino tea with Mall skating as an added feature. Mrs. Fenton Taylor, so I'm told, started the fad. As the Mall is public property, there are no barriers. Hence the mingling of society and the masses.

In the days when New York was little old New York, the Mall was merely a grassy plain and was a popular strolling place on Sunday afternoons. A band concert then was the most diverting feature. Incidentally, band concerts are still held on Sundays on the Mall during the summer season and Edwin Franko Goldman, band leader, wrote a march by that name, which is always popular with his audiences. In the old days of the quiet stroll, he was merely a cornet player in the band that delighted the old New Yorkers.

Back in those quiet old days, it was quite the thing to go driving in the park in the afternoon. Then the socially select traveled the winding drive-ways at a slow pace in their carriages and other smart equipages, with sedate coachmen and frozen-faced footmen as attendants. When the automobile first came along, it so agitated the horses that cars were barred from the park. Now the motor car is in possession, with only occasionally a carriage, the occupant of which is usually some haughty dowager of another day.

Manhattan ramblings and ruminations: A peck-legged accordion player on upper Broadway whose repertoire consists of airs of the old South. . . . Raises his hat and smiles whenever a coin drops into his cup. . . . But never misses a note. . . . The deserted old Wendel mansion at Thirty-ninth street and Fifth Avenue. . . . Seems to grow more dingy each day. . . . Claimants for the vast fortune still fighting in Surrogate's court. . . . A pellid Broadway columnist eating breakfast in Sardi's at four p. m. . . . Probably up early at that. . . . Lay off in front of the Palace telling one another how good they are. . . . Vanderville folks are the greatest optimists in the world. . . . Actors are a close second. . . . Constance Collier on her way to the Actors Dinner club. . . . Sign in a candy, camera, alarm clock filled drug store window: "We also fill prescriptions."

A Park Avenue deb with a monocle. . . . Haven't seen any of them in trousers as yet. . . . Plenty in riding breeches though. . . . Accidents are not infrequent on Central park riding paths. . . . The daughter of a prominent family is still wearing a plaster cast as the result of one year ago. . . . and there's still a question whether or not she'll be able to walk without crutches. . . . Whenever I think of her I don't laugh when I see Central park riders bounding up and down on their mounts. . . . But I still think of Col. Heinrich Pickert and his war-time riding class of Detroit business men. . . . and what he used to say when he saw daylight between the rider and the saddle.

Heard about a millionaire, who still has the money he made in the stock market. . . . Was playing contract bridge at a tenth of a cent a point. . . . Got $240 behind. . . . Tore up the cards with the remark, "I never did have any luck." . . . Marie Collins (Hello, Binghamton!) would have said, "With my luck." . . . Heard about an ex-millionaire in the financial district. . . . Hasn't a dime but is happy. . . . Says he's getting acquainted with the most wonderful woman in the world and the two finest boys. . . . Holds that closer contact with his family is worth more than a million. . . . Heard also about a cafeteria dishwasher who's paying the rent and grocery bills of a lower East side family to whom he isn't even related. . . . But the family took him in a year ago when he was sick and down and out. . . . and he holds that as long as he has any kind of job that family will have a roof and food. . . . I like that.

Senior "Sphinx" Is True to Nickname

By WILLIAM L. BRUCKART
Washington. — Senior Alberto Paul, secretary of the treasury of Mexico, spent some time in Washington recently and demonstrated why he is called "the sphinx" in his home bailiwick. A number of newspaper correspondents arranged to interview him, but their efforts were not altogether successful. For Senior "Sphinx" was just about that silent. One question after another was shot at him. His response usually was a shrug of the shoulder. Yet finally he warmed up and said: "Gentlemen, what is the use of all of this? Let's have a drink."

Pekingese Dogs

Show dogs of the Pekingese breed have one paramount feature. The characteristic "rolling gait." Another is the "bushy" face with the nose extremely small. A broad, flat skull, ears placed on a line with the top of the same and well fringed, are other features.

Eugene Sottile Was Discharged

Regarding the arrest of Eugene Sottile of 41 East Strand, who was taken into custody by the Kingston Police Wednesday and turned over to authorities at Albany on a charge of reckless driving, it was learned that he was not the man who was driving the car and was discharged by me.

Your truly,
S. G. CARPENTER,
Justice of the Peace.

A Revolutionary Hero

Visitors to Savannah rarely overlook a visit to the monument to William Jasper, the hero whose daring exploit in replacing the fallen colors of the Revolutionary forces at Fort Moultrie in the face of a galling fire has thrilled every American schoolboy. Jasper fell at Savannah with Pulaski in the siege of 1779. It was from this flourishing seaport, 114 years ago, that the Savannah made the first successful transatlantic voyage in the history of steamship navigation, the passage to Liverpool requiring 25 days.

Indiana's Fourth Governor

Kentucky, like Virginia, provided some of Indiana's early governors, among them James Brown Ray, who twice was elected to the highest office in the state. Ray, fourth Indiana governor, was born in Jefferson county, Kentucky, February 19, 1794, and was only thirty-one years of age when inaugurated into the governor's office. He studied law at Cincinnati and then went to Brookville, where he took up legal practice.

Chick Chandler Gets $700 a Week

Former Chandler, son of Dr. George F. Chandler, one of Kingston's noted surgeons and founder of the New York State Troopers, is now among the "comers" in Hollywood movie circles, according to Louella Parsons, motion picture editor for Universal Service. Writing from Los Angeles, Cal., June 14, for the New York American she commented on young Chandler, who is better known as Chick, than by Fehmer, as follows:

Into our midst some months ago came one Chick Chandler, a nephew of the artist, Howard Chandler Christy. He was given a contract at Radio paid $250 a week. Said contract contained a clause giving him $350 should his option be taken up. He made "Melody Cruise" but no action on the part of Radio. Some months later a Radio director, seeing "Melody Cruise" said young Chandler was just the type and he wanted him for his next picture. "Go and get him and offer him $350," he instructed. "Sorry," said Chandler's agent, "$700 a week or nothing," and the boy was signed at $700 a week.

Chandler has many friends in Kingston and vicinity who will be pleased to hear of his good fortune. He became interested in stage work here when quite young and went to New York for experience and work in musical shows fitted him for his present position. Directors consider him a type like Jimmy Cagney. Chandler appeared at the Broadway Theatre here several times before going west.
